Save the Family's Transitional Program was designed to promote self-sufficiency and stabilize family lifestyles with the community through intensive job training, life skills and counseling. It was quickly discovered that as these families entered into employment after training, their entry level wages were often not enough to obtain and maintain housing that was in line with their wage earnings. The lack of affordable housing for these families, often headed by single women heads of households, seems to perpetuate the cycle of homelessness. The ARM, therefore, was developed as another stepping-stone to self-sufficiency where clients would be able to pay below-market rates for their housing.

The ARM of Save the Family is an acronym for the Affordable Rental Movement. This organization, which is an affiliate of Save the Family, was established as a separate, nonprofit entity whose purpose was to develop affordable rentals for working poor families and individuals and offers supportive services to help them maintain and increase their self-sufficiency.

Since 1994, ARM has purchased more than 140 affordable housing units that are utilized as rentals. Rehabilitation and maintenance of the units, which is overseen by a Property Management Coordinator and Maintenance Technicians, is accomplished through grant funding, volunteer groups, and in-kind donations.

ARM of Save the Family does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, age, national origin, sex, disability, sexual orientation or political affiliation and makes reasonable efforts to accommodate the physically challenged upon notification.

The ARM Program was designed to help families and individuals develop their potential in the following areas:

- Becoming more employable
- Increasing financial stability
- Increasing family stability through educational and referral programs through Save the Family and other community agencies
